US Senate OKs bill to allow foreign workers legal status

WASHINGTON—THE US SENATE ADOPTED Thursday (Friday in Manila) sweeping reforms to an immigration law that will allow millions of undocumented workers to seek legal status in the United States.
Most controversial is a provision that would allow many of the estimated 11.5 million foreign workers here illegally, many of them Mexican, to gain legal status.

'Like cutting deal with Hitler's men'

Why Enron bosses were convicted

HOUSTON—KENNETH LAY MAY have joined his wife in prison when he testified in his own defense, stating at a prosecutor and telling a jury of middle-class men and women that he couldn't turn off his switch. "It's a trigger," Lay said.
$100 million in personal debt.
Lay's falling may have guaranteed himself a string of convictions when he couldn't connect his own testimony from prosecution witnesses with more than, "It's not true."
In one of the greatest corporate scandals in US history, former Enron Corp. chief Lay and Skilling were convicted on Thursday of fraud and conspiracy and could spend the rest of their lives in prison.
The Lay and Skilling convictions bring to 19 the number of Enron executives who pleaded guilty or have been found guilty of crimes.
The verdict capped a bitter four-month trial that was the culmination of the government's year-long effort to punish those for their roles in the stunning 2001 collapse of Enron, which shook the country's faith in corporate America and led to new corporate governance regulations.
"The jury are an extraordinary group. You can't be to shareholders. No matter how rich and powerful, you must play by the rules," government lawyer Kenneth Rosen said.

Salonga hits PCGG's compromise with Marcoses

By Norman Borador

THE MAN WHO launched the global search for Ferdinand Marcos' hidden wealth has urged President Macapagal-Arroyo to pull out of settlement talks with the Marcoses, and said striking a compromise with them would be like the Holocaust victims cutting a deal with Hitler's Nazis.
"The victims of the Holocaust launched the most war criminals wherever they went. The crime was pursued until... the last one of them was executed," former Senate President Jovito Salonga said in an interview yesterday.
"The Holocaust victims found the war criminals in the very end. That took more than 50 years. We just hit into our 25th year."
Salonga was the first chair of the Presidential Commission on Good Government formed in 1986 by then President Corason Aquino to track down assets.

Third on Everest but first in Manila

By Abhinav Pappa and Nikko Glon

HE MAY NOT HAVE BEEN THE first to reach the summit of Mt. Everest, but Bono Garbosa will come home a winner.
The nation's most accomplished mountaineer arrived home yesterday in a warm welcome from his countrymen and three officials of GMA 7, the television network that supported his climb.
Garbosa reached the summit of Mt. Everest last May 15, two days after Lee Chander and Brian "Beaver" Brown, two other Phil-ipino climbers from the First Philippine Mt. Everest Expedition (FPME), achieved the feat.
GMA 7 news director Jessica Soto said the network was impressed with Garbosa's tenacity and decision not to return the climb into a race.
"He has always been humble despite his amazing, fantastic climbs. His demeanor did not change during the expedition, even with the risk that this was turning out to be a race. We admire and respect his decision that he did not want to race," Soto said.

Erap gets credit for bigger carabaos

WHY'S GOT THE LAST laugh now?
They laughed at then Sen. Joseph Estrada, to include even some of his own legislators in the Senate, for what was perceived as his own caricature even the one and only term he authored in the Senate that had to do with the carabao.
The sense was that Estrada was making much ado

SENATE PROBE Pro-Erap 5 blame GMA for abduction

By TJ Burgeon and Lugo A. del Puerto

"IS THERE NO SAFETY FOR ordinary citizens like us? Is there no security? What kind of government is this?"
These were the questions raised by Ruffalo Burgeon, chair of the Union of the Masses for Democracy and Justice, after he and four other members of the group lashed to former President Joseph Estrada were freed Thursday night from their detention by the military.
Looking grim and sweating profusely, four of the men showed up yesterday at a press briefing at the Senate and said they were holding President Macapagal-Arroyo liable for their abduction and detention by military intelligence agents.
They attacked the Senate plenary debate on the budget of the Department of National Defense and witnessed action grill Arnold Reyes officials on the incident through Sen. Manuel Villar Jr.
The five men were picked up Monday from a house in Quezon

De Venecia endorses $503-M NorthRail project

By Philip C. Tobias

HOUSE SPEAKER JUNE DE VENECIA Thursday pushed for the controversial $503-million NorthRail transit system, which is now under Senate investigation for alleged irregularities.

De Venecia maintained that his role in the project was aboveboard and that he had been publicly discussing the Philippine railway modernization program for years. Broderick China, he said, he had also visited South Korea, Austria, Germany and Saudi Arabia in partnership "because we need a transnational, not regional, development of the rail system in Luzon, the Visayas and Mindanao."

The Speaker's issue was again linked to the rail project on Thursday after NorthRail Corp. president Jose Gutierrez told the House that De Venecia hosted meetings between government officials and Chinese Embassy representatives in his Manila residence.

But De Venecia said everyone knows that there were only two reasons for his coverings—at the Speaker's office in Congress when the House of Representatives is in session and at his Manila residence. "This has been my practice since 1987," he said. Unlike the existing one-track system, the project is a double-track system that will be more than 62 kilometers of track estimated to carry 250,000 commuters daily.

The project is funded by a $100-million loan from the Chinese government with the Philippines providing $100 million as its counterpart.

When it was launched last year, Minister Jose Gutierrez of China in any government.

De Venecia said the government was also pushing for a Visayan rail system possibly with support from the German, Austro-German governments.

SUBIC RAPE CASE

Court to hold hearings 4x a week

By Terra V. Quinsac

HEARINGS ON THE RAPE CASE filed by a Filipino woman against four US Marines would be held four times a week starting June 1 in a bid to conclude the case at the soonest possible time.

Striding under time pressure, Military Regional Trial Court Branch 139 Judge Benjamin P. Ponce yesterday ruled from three to four times a week the frequency of hearings on the rape case.

The hearings would be held Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

"In view of the number of witnesses to be presented and the possibility of the presentation of rebuttal and cross-examination witnesses, the court is now taking this chance. The offended party has a right, the accused have their rights," said Ponce, during a pre-trial conference yesterday afternoon.

Ponce made the adjustment when he learned that at least 50 witnesses he made to accommodate the presentation of all prosecution and defense witnesses.

The change in schedule took into consideration the time needed for possible rebuttal and cross-examination.

The prosecution intends to present 44 witnesses to prove that the first accused—Staff Sgt. Chad Brian Capompoli, 34-year-old, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020, Toadyism

IN SUBSTANCE AND FORM, THE PRESIDENTIAL Commission on Good Government's task to settle with the Marcoses in connection with their ill-gotten wealth cases is in poor taste. There's much to worry about the recent implications of settling with the Marcoses; the issue itself is a moral minefield around the neck of the Filipino people, and more especially of the POGO which is tasked to pursue plundered income against the Marcoses and their heirs.

But even ostensibly neutralism is a poor form in which the POGO is pushing forward its case. It does not seem to mind the contradictions being related in its apparent act to remain with the estate.

The inconsistency is reflected in POGG Commissioner Ricardo Abcede's invitation for Imelda Marcos to attend his brother's party recently. It may be Abcede's private business wishes to invite her to his party, but considering that he is a public official assigned to prosecute the Marcoses, who from 500 billion pesos worth cases, it is the public's business to demand that his private business may be the public's problem. The invitation smacks of sleeping with the enemy.

But, also, Abcede does not seem to follow his own rules. "I just wanted to have fun with friends," he said, in defense of his brother's party. So does he consider Imelda Marcos a personal friend? How does that relate with his "public" task of prosecuting the ill-gotten wealth cases against her? Whose side is he on, anyway?

Abcede said last time he is pursuing an amicable settlement with the Marcoses, "I have to be amiable with them." This seems to betray a certain reluctance, if not neutrality.

His recent apology in Abcede's explanation why he is being amiable with Imelda Marcos, "I am approaching from a position of strength, but I would like them to be in the proper frame of mind so they will be open to a rational premise."

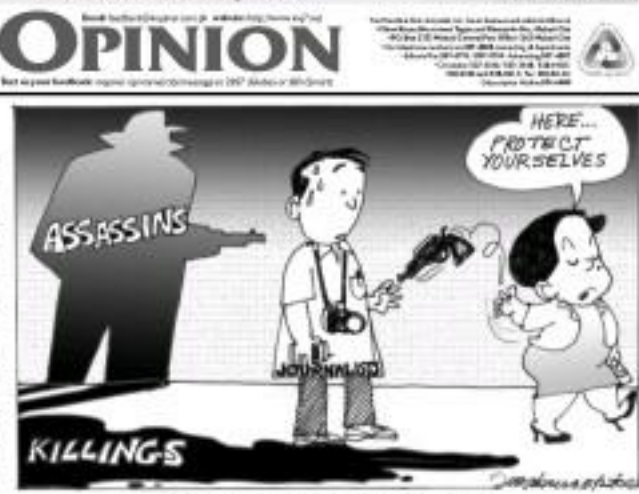

The minutes indicate otherwise: the POGO is not negotiating from a position of strength, but of extreme weakness. How else could one explain Abcede's attempt to be amiable with Imelda Marcos? How else could one explain his attempts to soothe and relate the Marcoses so that they would be "in the proper frame of mind" and "be open to a rational premise"?

The last phrase, in fact, signals who has the upper hand in the issue. It reveals that the POGO is pursuing a policy of rapprochement and even of appeasement with the Marcoses in order to solve their estate and "be open to a compromise." The Marcoses are in a position of strength, while the POGG is in a position of... weakness!

Abcede, otherwise a lawyer who has had a credible private practice and someone who truly knows his law and legal tactics, should realize that by paying for a settlement, the government is doing the Marcoses a service. It has practically reversed the process of legal sanctions against the Marcoses, let the government suing the Marcoses. It's the prosecutor suing for a way out. It's the lawyer being sued. He use the POGG attack dog with its tail wagging between its legs!

It would have been spared the statutory right of a government doing the killing of the Marcoses if the POGO has been allowed to attack with the content as with the case. Abcede said POGG Chair Cayetano Santos has been dangling the prospect of an amicable settlement with the Marcoses. Abcede may have denied to his boss "amiable" is still strong, but in the least, he seems to have found the prospect as a trial balloon to test the public's receptivity to the idea. Either way, he has proven the public's reaction, and in the process, weakened the government's position. He is handing the Marcoses a leg and a moral victory on a silver platter.

Nevertheless, the bad form comes to a corrupt end, an immoral core. If the government had gone around the moral case against the Marcoses, then it would strengthen the legal battle against them. Morally bankrupt of the legal battle against the Marcoses, Abcede and the POGG should not bicker then. If the people don't risk to the more than they risk becoming a case to be won. Or at the least, they risk becoming a case to the Marcoses.

An imperfect Constitution

LET'S MAKE IT CLEAR AT THE OUTSET: Here again the On-Off can not completely agree in examining and changing the Constitution. It's the president's right implied by the document that we object to. That will be my subject for this column.

The Constitution of 1987 was drafted by a special Constitutional Commission and not by a constitutional convention of elected delegates. While the commission was generally comprised a number of them who were elected by the people, they were not elected representatives of the electorate and it is open to debate.

One might say that their common qualification, receipt of an appointment by one of the three branches of government, was the only way to ensure that they were not elected by the people. They did not even have to be elected by the people. They were appointed by the President. This is not a constitutional Commission as such. It is a committee of the President.

The commission came from various sectors with diverse professions, which could be seen as a way to ensure that they were not elected by the people. They did not even have to be elected by the people. They were appointed by the President. This is not a constitutional Commission as such. It is a committee of the President.

No trace of missing Bayan member

By Luigi B. del Puerto

A MILENARY PARTY LIST GROUP YESTERDAY demanded that government security forces arrest, or at very the least, acknowledge that they have not conducted one of its members who was abducted last May 16 in Marikina City.

Witnesses said the man who matched Rolando Reyes in Marikina City had identified himself as a law professor, a chair the position has since.

Witnesses

"We have strong suspicion that Inop (intelligence division of the Armed Forces of the Philippines) and CDS (criminal investigation and detection group) agents were the ones who abducted Reyes," said Bayan Muna deputy secretary general Roberto de Castro.

Reyes Muna could have been an eye-witness, those who know Reyes have a working 1,200 cell, with Reyes phone 201 as he was buying a phone card for his mobile phone from a store at the corner of Alameda and Macapagal streets in Marikina City, a short walk from his house.

The manner in which the "E770" were arrested in Quezon City on Monday indicated that government forces could also be behind Pater's abduction, he continued.

Admission

I took the subway 40 times to admit that but in its entirety that supporters of former President Estrada who were arrested on Monday in Quezon City for allegedly being involved in a plot to assassinate several cabinet officials.

Reyes was found Thursday night. Pater's body brother, Mateo Reyes, said the disappearance might have something to do with his work at Reyes Muna, a national organization often linked to left-leaning forces.

Ordered

Upon hearing of the trip it's ordered, he said it was possible government forces could have kidnapped brother under their custody as well.

"That is how I feel. His group, Bayan Muna, is against the Gloria (Macapagal) administration. They could have taken him," Reyes said.

Reyes said he and members of the human rights group Bayan Muna would ask justice providers as well as Camp Crame and Camp Aguinaldo in Manila to try to locate his brother.

Liasee

In a text message yesterday, De Castro demanded that the government produce members of the team that arrested the "E770." "Witnesses in Pater's abduction may be able to identify them who took him in a house," the Bayan Muna official said, adding that after hearing tales of torture from the "E770," the group feared that Pater could be going through the same ordeal.

The government, he said, has no "good storylines" at the time to deny Pater's abduction.

Commenting on the Pater case, Philippine National Police spokesperson Dr. Joseph Pajalila Jr. said the police do not want people to take the law.

Charges

"If there is a warrant for the arrest, we bring him for him in the court that issued the warrant. If it is a warrant-arrest, we charge within the required period," he said.

Pajalila admitted as far as Pater was concerned, he had not received a report that a police unit had arrested the missing Bayan Muna member.

Subtropical warming seen creating bigger deserts

POWERSHOP-BURTS AP-prophet is warning faster over the subtropical desert anywhere else, which could mean bigger deserts and more drought. Some studies in Australia to the Middle East, researchers said on Thursday.

The heat-busting war games the globe is about 50 degrees north and south latitudes, covering the southern United States, southern China and south Africa to the southern deserts, and southern Australia, south Africa and southern South America in the Southern Hemisphere.

Based on 25 years of satellite data, researchers at the University of Washington also announced that the jet streams—a pattern of westerly winds that help drive weather in both hemispheres—have shifted about 70 miles (112.7 km) northward in respective poles.

This is important because the jet streams mark the northern and southern boundaries of the major climate zones, said John

William, an atmospheric scientist and co-author of a research paper in this week's Science journal.
The jet streams' shift toward the poles means the zones are expanding.
The research is not predictive,
but does show a long-term trend,
William said by telephone.
"It [this jet stream shift] is going to expand and it just adds up to being 70 miles (112.7 km) shift, that's not a big deal," he said. "But if it continues at the same rate over the next century, that's what would mean in terms of climate and moisture and that would not be a negligible effect."

The city subtropical climate in place, which means some of the world's major deserts, could expand into temperate regions, William said. Areas such as the Mediterranean, southern Europe and the northern part of the U.S. that could have a tendency to become more droughty, William said.
The new study helps in understanding the climate and desert effects, he said.

The study does not address whether the warming is due to the greenhouse effect or some other factor. It is different from previous models, which saw the deserts warming to the equator, rather than the subtropics.
The greenhouse effect is seen as a major cause for global warming, in which so-called greenhouse gases, especially carbon dioxide, would trap the heat like a blanket, keeping the earth's surface warmer.

Some greenhouse warming is natural, but many scientists believe that accelerated warming over the last century was caused by human activities, including coal-burning power plants and the use of fossil fuels.

Past atmospheric warming in the lower atmosphere, which would be the case, could push more water toward the poles, possibly reducing winter precipitation in places like northern Europe, including the Alps, in northern Asia, and the Arctic and in Antarctica.

In Japan, ex-Livedoor execs admit to fraud

TOKYO—JAPANESE EXECUTIVES
of the once-high-flying Internet firm Livedoor admitted Friday to fraud allegations as they went on trial for criminal charges that victims' lawyers sued for millions of dollars.

The four executives, once known for their casual dress and boozing ways, were seen in court and looked humbly at the ground as prosecutors outlined charges of billion-dollar financial losses.

"In principle, I acknowledge that the facts in the indictment are correct," said Shirogaki, Livedoor's 40-year-old former chief financial officer, said the Tokyo District Court.

"I am examining myself over the crime I have committed. I feel very sorry for causing trouble to many people," he said.

The three other executives—former financial, former director and former chairman—also admitted all or part of the charges. However, two accompanying who are also on trial denied they cooked the books.

The former top executives are charged with embezzling by Livedoor's chairman, founder, Takafumi Hori, whose trial is expected in July.

Hori, who has been a year ago in the parliament with the House of Representatives, said he resigned his position.

The 40-year-old 29-year-old said to be a senior director for marketing operations, who responsible for Livedoor's stock and showing up as Livedoor's former board member in a trial.

Prosecutors said the four executives on trial Friday "conspired" with Hori and falsely reported to 5.5 billion yen ($45 million to 5.5 billion yen) for the year
September 2004 to false stock losses of more than 500 million yen

Theft of data on US veterans may cost $500M

WASHINGTON—THE HEAD of the Department of Veterans Affairs last week warned that the theft of a device that he said could steal personal data on 26.5 million veterans may cost $500 million to $1 billion.

"No current threat," I am not at all," Veterans Affairs Secretary

Don Hutto said the threat against the government's efforts.
"We believe that a department employee who had access to the data without authorization was guilty of administrative law and other people are also in the middle of it," he said. "The data was stolen from the employee's home in Maryland."

Hutto said he could not provide the government would cover all personnel losses by workers, but suggested Congress put a law to do so.

"There is no sign that any of this stolen data," he said by telephone and said that it was a "disaster," Hutto said. Congress can act on this case in the next few weeks.

He said another identity theft scam stole more than $100 million in money and over 100,000 names.
Hutto said that "any theft of $100 million" would be a "major loss" to the government.

The choice of the data for the theft was the subject of a broadly administrative problem in the department.

Bush, Blair acknowledge mistakes, defend Iraq war

WASHINGTON—US President George W. Bush and British Prime Minister Tony Blair bluntly acknowledged that the Iraq war had been marked by "mistakes" and "missteps" but insisted that the world must support the new Baghdad government.

During an extraordinary 50-minute White House press conference Thursday, the political leaders in arms expressed remorse at many aspects of the campaign which brought down Saddam Hussein but also underlined their own popularity.

Blair expressed regret for the Abu Ghraib prison scandal and some of his tough-talking comments.

Blair said the "de-legitimation" of Iraq...the cleaning out of Saddam's followers...had been badly handled.

Bush and Blair (left) at the White House press conference.

There was some of the discomfort brought back to the leaders' press conference after their regular meetings over the past three years.

"No question that the Iraq war has brought a sense of disappointment here in America," said Bush. "I mean, when you run on your TV screens and see innocent people die in and die out, it affects the morality of our country."

"Our responsibility as a nation has come out as the way we had expected or hoped. We've learned from our mistakes, adjusted our methods and learned to be more effective," said the US president.

Blair said he should not have made going to war with Iraq as "easy" as he had when he signed the Iraq invasion in 2003.

"I learned some lessons about expecting myself maybe in a little more sophisticated manner," he declared.

Blair said he had been sure that his political instincts were right when he decided to go to war because of the war, but both sides they were right to order the March 2003 invasion.

"The decision to remove Saddam's regime from power was a mistake. We did not find the weapons of mass destruction that we all believed were there, and that's caused questions about whether the mission in Iraq has been worth it," Blair said.

"Despite setbacks and missteps, I strongly believe we did and are doing the right thing," he added.

Blair's remarks were a departure from the words of the US, which has been in Iraq, in saying "we will keep the level level their country's security."

With a majority of 75 public opinion polls against the war, Blair said, "It is important for the American people to know that politics isn't going to make the decision as to the end of the war."

Blair's remarks were a departure from the words of the US, which has been in Iraq, in saying "we will keep the level level their country's security."

Blair's government has been hit by a series of setbacks in recent weeks, and his Labour Party suffered a serious setback in recent local elections. Blair has said he will not stand in the next general election slated for 2010.

Through Blair's last visit to the White House, Blair has said he will not stand in the next general election slated for 2010.

Strange, Chang share halfway 1-stroke lead

By Marygrove, Castillo

JUVIC PAGUNSAN MADE THE adjustments early Thursday evening, shook off the jitters yesterday, and for the third straight year made himself a hot contender in the Philippine Open.

Papayan assumed his place on the leadership as the top Filipino pro after a 2-sister (a 70-year-old) a share of health spent halfway through the $100,000 share. Your event, last four days off the road fairly held in Australia's East (George and Tennessee/Cheng Yang job).

To help his second start as a pro in his native soil, Paganini enlisted his brother with four brothers to join 2008 Olympic Nick Giliotti (72) and his brothers, all brothers and sons.

"The Juggys I made were all because of bad luck," Bignones, the last immigrant and a top 30 finalist in the last two years, told the business in Filipino. "They were Spanish, bad grammar, etc. With luck in the weekend, Filipino have a pretty good chance at making a run at the 100 crown."

The 20-year-old was one of 15 local boys who made it to professional play in 30 of their country were 100 short of the cut pegged at 154—nine—including former winner Linus Clontz, whose second round 78 gave him a 107.

"SLITHER" Cheesy, campy—but fun.

Homage to slime and gore flicks

By Holden Koze

WHO SAYS HORROR FILMS CAN'T BE fun? Certainly not Slither, director James Gunn's offbeat, discoidal-dish flick that is both a horror movie and a comedy. If you're familiar with the like 'The Thing,' 'Invaders of the Body South,' 'Night of the Living Dead,' and practically everything by George Romero, John Carpenter, and Wes Craven, you'll probably recognize a lot of the cinematic grammar in 'Slither.' There's the cheap alien invasion that centers on a quiet, low-tech movie via televisions. The characters grow wary that the little farm grows about lovingly human bodies, and appearing in them, looking anxious, a day break, and a bathroom scene with a robe are.

Tongue-in-cheek

If the alien invader is a sharp-edged story and that the alien invader is a sharp-edged story, the director has a great sense for the film. Gunn, who wrote the script for the highly praised 2004 remake of 'The Hot Chick,' is a well-known horror geek, and the movie is his homage to the alien invader genre. It's a bit of a tongue-in-cheek, but it's a fun movie to watch.

'Slither,' in fact, looks like the work of a man who obviously has a great sense for the film. Vision versus X-ray vision

This generation's the 'Me' generation—let's make it Super

By Pope Decker

WANT A RAY VISION? Man, that'd be cool—if you fall asleep, you can always get a job at the airport. I will end this crappy intro right there.

This post, shot at about 3 a.m. rains at the top of our imagination list. It's cool being able to see through darkness to look at the nudes of people and tell what's wrong with them. It's fun and crap!

But let me tell you a secret. We all have X-ray vision, and we use it every day. We look at each other and sometimes every little thing we see. I bet you love seeing other people through your X-ray eyes. We enjoy seeing people in their most vulnerable states.

But I'll tell you another secret—just because we super-heroes...X-ray vision is not a super power. I'll tell you what is.

The generation

This nation's teenagers all now, all these years we're called, entitled, and the generation. Super.

Also, perhaps, not so?

One thing that's been said of our generation is that we're too full of ourselves—really, we have gone through to say we're the best people ever.

A big lot of us have online profiles, represent our being, and blogs to let people know who we think. Some of us have our own cars, and even personal chefs.

We do everything in pursuit of our own personal happiness. We party and drink, and do crazy things just to get our fix.

We're the "Me" generation!

Here's the third secret. Our superpower is "Me."

Is a different generation

The older people are shocked at us. They think we're childish, that we have no goals, and all that nonsense. They hope we'll outgrow this phase.

The fourth secret is that we will survive it. But we won't carry into them—we're different.

While all generations go through the "finding themselves" phase in this sense, the difference between this generation and the past is where they find their direction.

Older generations have looked outward, with X-ray eyes. They've submitted themselves to systems, and norms, and acceptable ways. They've accepted society and changed it, but they've made it more complex.

Our generation's looking for answers now. We're just looking for it somewhere else. Like, in ourselves.

What much is that? Is it the meaning of life, or whether there ever was a God? Or even the idea of God, but I think that the truth is the self. There isn't anything.

See, the more we get lost, the more we know us. The more we find, the more we get up, and the more much we find—we find more of ourselves.

The more we learn about our self, the more we acknowledge our own potential to do the more we contribute to the world. When we build desire to our abilities, we build desire to the world.

We need to know who we are to know how we can change the world around us.

It's the Super generation

I said that X-ray vision isn't a superpower, our generation's strength of "Me" is. But what really makes us Super?

One day we will find answers, but the older generations have. We'll laugh at the things we're doing now. But let's hope we don't realize to the extent we know aren't right. We'll not have answers like many adults have.

To do that, we need to keep "Me" from "us." The "Me" generation needs to get rid of it's able to find itself, and share it with others.

And don't be deceived by adults who say you're too young. We're too young, that's your's to do. You know just how. We know just how.

You don't have to be pretty. You don't have to be this smart, amazing, dominant, powerful, those just know where. You don't have to be it. It's not that people don't even have to know you.

Over these years, Super has helped young people just like you, who may live in the present, and do what they love. There are many of them. We're helping you become of them in the near future.

Remember, there's just one super: (1) Look inside yourself, stay true to your wisdom. (2) Show this wonderful thing with others.

That's our vision...it isn't X-ray...but it's Super.

The Tell-tale Heart: Tips for a Healthy Life

lifestyle change

Dr. Lucretia O. Liles, Head of the Nutrition Support Services of St. Luke's Medical Center is an expert in clinical nutrition with a proven track record in the care of the critically-ill like cardiac patients. He would share his help in the prevention of heart disease than see it in its full-blown manifestation. As part of St. Luke's total quality patient care program, Dr. Liles looks at the overall health status of a patient and recommends simpler and healthier diets as his prescription for a healthy heart.

Eat right: Making healthy food choices significantly lowers blood pressure and reduces the risk of a heart attack. Loading up on fruits and vegetables, whole grains, nuts and fish helps the blood offload your body also meets the right amounts of healthy fat. With high-cholesterol bad food and other convenience items taking up a larger role in the modern diet, you will be better off with balanced rations that fulfill your calorie and protein requirement (based on your weight and nutritional assessment).

For obtaining optimum health and maximum productivity, Dr. Lillo recommends a balanced diet supplemented with "nutrient-complete" products like Ensura. It provides complete and balanced nutrition and can also be used as a meal replacement to help ward off hyperlipidemia, stroke and cardiovascular disease. It gives you the required calories and helps eliminate the "quacking game" associated with fed diets.

Be active. Sedentary lifestyles are the scourge of the modern age. If work and other concerns leave you with no time to exercise, remember that just being physically active doing housework or taking care of the kids already counts for exercise. So keep moving and do whatever form of exercise is fit for you. Exercise provides health benefits for the whole body like improving circulation and muscle mass function, repairing body tissues and reducing inflammation, aside from providing heart protection.

Avoid stress. Studies have shown that emotional and physical stress can also increase oxidative damage from free radicals in the whole body. It also raises your blood pressure and makes you more prone to heart attacks. So make sure you set aside some time for rest and relaxation. Step back from the "fast lane" and engage in relaxing activities like music, reading, enjoying time with your family, or having special holidays. Your heart will thank you for it.

Have a positive outlook. Studies have shown that people who look at the bright side of life tend to have better productivity and stable relationships. Married couples with positive relationships tend to live longer.

For an effective patient management approach to intensive and comprehensive pre- and post-operative cardiac rehabilitation, more doctors incorporate daily readings of Pexon.

Eners is equipped with a heart-defense system rich in antioxidants and low in cholesterol, sodium and saturated fats to assure you of total heart protection. It also has a heart-healthy fat blend that meets the standards set by the American Heart Association.

Not heart is the place of activity in your body. Every part of your system depends on it, so it's heart is breaking your entire body, including the heart. It's not that your whole body suffers, but heart is in charge of pumping the blood through your entire body, providing blood to every part of the body in your mind, organs, muscles and bones. The blood comes from the heart to your organs, then you try to get rid of it, so the heart and the blood are the same that lead back to your heart.

Although your heart is a powerful organ, it can be damaged by disease and poor living habits. The number one warning sign: chest pain or discomfort. All these risk factors can harm your body and damage your blood circulation.

Maxx helps fight off the harmful effects of free radicals caused by stress, unhealthy habits, by using Maxx Defense System, creates a shield around your heart to help protect your heart as well.

Low cholesterol - High low your levels and keep them proper and cholesterol levels are lower than the norm of blood

AQUAMAN. King of the seas, draws his strength from nature, as powerful as water

We've got the power

From an army of me to an army of we. There is definitely strength in numbers.

By Gioia de Pizio and Pam Fuster

LAST YEAR, WE CELEBRATED Super's second anniversary by giving Three Superiors a push. We wanted people to reach deep within themselves and realize that labels shouldn't stop them, that they should take risks, cross boundaries and sometimes even hurdles to make a mark on the world. And it seems that Three were inspiring. Really inspiring. Like Len Osorio, Scott Gershen and Irena Usata, who proudly waved the colors of the Philippine flag at 29,433 feet above sea level. Like Monay Pangasinan who defied those and three punches to earn yet another boxing victory last weekend. (All of the cash he's won, he, we think he should be called Money Pangasinan. Because his disposition, we couldn't resist.) Like the cast and crew of Tag Pabalat to Monay-Gershen who not only captured audience in March but topped at people's hearts from Super's premiere broadcast. Like Len Gershen and Scott Gershen who made Three proud in this year's Independent Spirit Awards in Hollywood. Like Jody, who won the Philippine flag on his jacket when he performed as a guest musician on "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno." If you don't have a clue who he is yet, Google him, click on his website and prepare to be inspired. Like Frances Harve, who proved that you can win by being your true, unadorned self. That includes going to the beach, not like to think she was because women found her refreshing, a local film director helped in promoting their image with original music.

But even there are a few more. It's hard to find those who achieved great things for themselves and for the country. And we're already aware that we're powerful as individuals, it's time to merge our talents and share our strengths as a generation. If last year we focused on the "me," so our third anniversary we want the spotlight on the "we." Because no matter what crisis and crisis may say, we're got the power.

Is your room filled with sound or stereo equipment? Do you want to change the way you experience digital music? Are you distracted by all these questions? Then spoil those eardrums with the iPod HiFi Line, now!

Brand new. Speakers of the house

By Gina de la Peña

IT'S A LITTLE BIT BIGGER THAN a standard speaker, but it sure packs a wallop. I wish someone told me to keep back before reaching on the iPod HiFi because now, I think I'm partially deaf. Partially deaf but completely aware.

At 1 foot tall, with the built-in 50-watt amplifier, enough power to blow your hair back, and you were listening to a whole lot of speakers. (Well, it didn't help that the first song that blasted out of my iPod was Justin Bieber's remix of N.E.R.D.'s "Black & White.") The iPod HiFi is really a game level up from the competing, albeit louder, music speakers I've used.

After filling my room with the sweet sound of direct music, I decided to introduce my new speakers to the other parts of the house. You know, to see if all the media hype was justified. First stop was, ahem, the bathroom where doing my hair sometimes got tedious. Next? Kitchen. Well, I slipped out an equally sweet, acing, harmonic sounds from my iPod, only to realize my iPod was the "speaker." The iPod's built-in speakers, which promote the speakers home also using so much, putting out a distinctly clean but muted. Oh the way, if you haven't heard this yet, it's what Garcia sounds like in rock, not love.

After it had had gone, I was able to log it around month the wonder of how I pulled it to the guitar room, to see how my latest post was really sound. In a sense of how, I realized my own old-school music. It's better. The second time of the iPod HiFi music out of a 10-minute music and 10-second fragments. After my second's endnote, my iPod was—no longer just music. Oh yes, it's because of the "loud" music will produce, but will design for your space. (Well, it's a pretty big space.)

Apple's new design is also great. Apple, more and more right, the iPod HiFi's sleek design, everything you just want it, whether it's an iPod HiFi music to your living room or a 10-minute music to the kitchen. (This is not to say that you don't have to listen. Listen if you want to.) iPod HiFi is not a high power device here, all the components are built-in. (Which means you can't change the music like the first generation design, so, iPod HiFi is the iPod HiFi.) The iPod HiFi is the iPod HiFi. (The iPod HiFi is the iPod HiFi.)

And as a bonus for all you listeners out there, the iPod HiFi has its own remote control. (It's slightly bigger than a lightbulb, it has the same unimpressive appearance and philosophy as a lightbulb. I think with enough, that it has a clicker.) My right thumb kept on clicking the buttons instead of pushing them as I'm supposed to do. (Just while I'm on the subject, what does the remote button do? I don't know.)

Well, the iPod HiFi is the best-sounding new portable music system in the market today. (It's not a device, it's a device.)
